To Start your website you need to invest some money but the amount in the beginning is small if you follow this guide. All websites you go to have one thing in common and that is that they are hosted on a server somewhere. The arrangement can vary widely depending on the complexity and amount of traffic it should cater. I have used a number of ways to host my websites over the years and the easiest and most affordable way is to start with a managed service with a good reputable company that have been around for a while. My suggestion is always to investigate the options you find before joining anyone.
